It's not a matter of if, but when, your bank or credit union will fall victim to a cyberattack. Today's threat actors are more sophisticated than ever before – rapidly adapting attacks to bypass common security practices. Financial institutions of all sizes are considered targets by attackers, putting your customers and members at risk. To best protect your customers' and members' data, and your reputation and operations, you must go above the minimum baseline requirements. In this presentation, HORNE Cyber will discuss cybersecurity best practices for financial institutions, tactics for identifying vulnerabilities and active threats, strategies for threat and vulnerability management, and proper incident response in the wake of a breach. With this presentation, HORNE Cyber will assist your financial institution on its journey of becoming a cyber-resilient organization.
